

Rock and Roll adolescent hoodlums storm the streets of all nations.
They rush into the Louvre and throw acid in the Mona Lisa's face.

— William S. Burroughs,
Naked Lunch 1959 - 2009

Naked Lunch @ 50

Symposium 1-3 July 2009

University of London Institute in Paris

To celebrate the 50th anniversary of William Burroughs' landmark publication, the University of London Institute in Paris is hosting a three-day symposium as part of a cultural homage, the book launch of Naked Lunch @ 50: Anniversary Essays, film screenings, readings, live music, performances, events, routines, acid in the Mona Lisa's face...

The Symposium will feature 15- and 30-minute papers, informal talks and open discussions under the headings: The Untold Naked Lunch; A Post-Colonial Lunch; Naked Paris; Naked Lunch Now...

Contact: Oliver Harris (nakedlunch50@gmail.com)

Proposals: By 30th October 2008

Information: nakedlunch.org

University of London Institute in Paris

The David Bruce Centre

FOR AMERICAN STUDIES

